Ravi sentencing stuns

Former Rutgers student gets 30 days in jail Prosecutors were seeking up to 10 years Activists hope it prevents future bullying

Gay rights activists said yesterday they were disappointed with the light sentence given to former Rutgers University student Dharun Ravi, but hoped that the case would help prevent future incidents of bullying.

Ravi was sentenced yesterday to 30 days in prison, a small cry from the maximum 10 years he faced for using a webcam to spy on his roommate's sexual encounter with another man.

Ravi's roommate at Rutgers, Tyler Clementi, jumped off the George Washington Bridge in September 2010 after finding out about the webcam.

This March, a jury convicted Ravi of bias intimidation — a hate crime.

The judge also sentenced him to three years of probation, along with 300 hours of community service. In addition, the judge ordered Ravi to pay $11,000.

Superior Court Judge Glenn Berman called Ravi's actions "wildly inappropriate" but noted that Ravi was not charged in the suicide, according to The Associated Press.

"This is an outrageous slap in the face to all who believe in equal justice," City Council Speaker Christine Quinn said in a statement. "We continue to work to make sure that all LGBT people are accepted as equals."

Anthony M. Brown, executive director of The Wedding Party, an advocacy group that supports gay couples and families, told Metro that Clementi's anguish hit a bit close to home.

He said he was picked on so intensely while growing up in Virginia in the late 1960s and early 1970s that he tried to take his own life.

"My initial reaction to it was, 'Only 30 days?'" he said of the sentencing.

But he added that, in a way, he feels sorry for Ravi.

"The real problem is a society where it's OK to bully gay kids," Brown said. "It is like the last bastion of acceptable discrimination."

He said he hoped the sentencing would spur discussions about anti-gay bullying.

"My hope," he said, "is that at least it's going to start a conversation."

▶ Dharun Ravi was sentenced to serve one month in jail.

Ravi unlikely to face being deported

Ravi is scheduled to report to prison on May 31, but that could get pushed back.

Prosecutors said yesterday they would appeal, calling the sentence insufficient, according to The Associated Press.

The judge in the case reportedly recommended that Ravi, who was born in India but grew up in the United States, not be deported.

He had faced deportation after his conviction.

Income gap in NYC twice national average: Report

The top 1 percent of New Yorkers have one-third of all the personal income in the city, according to a report released yesterday.

The report, which was released by the city comptroller's office, revealed that the city's income gap is twice the national average.

According to the report, the top 1 percent of New York tax filers accounted for 32.5 percent of the entire income in 2009, the last year studied.

In contrast, nationally, the top 1 percent accounted for 16.9 percent of all income, according to the comptroller's report.

The average income of these top earners in 2009 was $2.2 million, and the lower 99 percent of filers had an annual income of $47,000, according to the report.

The income gap "threatens the very fragile economic recovery we are now experiencing," Comptroller John Liu said.

"Such a wide income gap has financial consequences for the city," he added. "Income inequality can weaken or destabilize the local tax base, reinforce patterns of racial and economic segregation and undermine the vibrant social, cultural and economic mix that is the foundation of New York City's identity."

Quoted

"We must not repeat the pattern of the last decade, when a few gathered enormous wealth while the vast majority of New York families were left behind or saw very modest gains."

About Facebook: Shares take a dive

Facebook shares sank in the first day of trading without the full support of the company's underwriters, leaving some investors down almost 25 percent from where they were Friday and driving others to switch back to more established stocks.

Facebook's debut was beset by problems, so much so that Nasdaq said yesterday it was changing its IPO procedures. That may comfort companies considering a listing, but does it little for Facebook, whose lead underwriter, Morgan Stanley, had to step in and defend the $38 offering price on the open market.

Even so, one source said Morgan Stanley's own brokers were at one point "ranting and raving" about glitches that left unclear what trades had actually been executed.

Without a fresh round of defense, Facebook shares fell $3.79 to $34.34 in afternoon trading. That represented a decline of 10 percent from Friday's close and 24 percent from Friday's intra-day high of $45 a share.

"At the moment it's not living up to the hype," said Frank Lesh, a futures analyst and broker at FuturePath Trading LLC in Chicago, adding that some people may have decided to hang back and buy the stock on the decline.

"Look at the valuation on it. It might have said 'buy' to a few people, but boy it was awfully rich," he said.

Volume was again massive yesterday, with more 141 million shares trading hands by 3:15 p.m., making it by far the most active stock on the U.S. market. Nearly 581 million shares were traded on Friday. REUTERS

In vitro children not necessarily due benefits

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled yesterday that children conceived through in vitro fertilization after the death of a parent were not automatically entitled to survivor benefits under the Social Security law.

The justices unanimously sided with the Obama administration and overturned a U.S. appeals court's ruling for a New Jersey woman who is seeking benefits for her twins conceived by artificial insemination after her husband's death. The high court case pitted reproductive technologies against longstanding requirements.

The Social Security Administration says eligibility for benefits depends partly on whether state law would allow a posthumously conceived child to inherit property in the absence of a will. The Supreme Court agreed. REUTERS

MOSCOW. Russian President Vladimir Putin unveiled a government dominated by loyalists yesterday, tightening his grip on the economy and national security after protests and limiting Prime Minister Dmitry Medvedev's ability to pursue market reforms.

Banker endorsement: Dimon can fix JPMorgan

NEW YORK. JPMorgan Chase & Co. Chief Executive Officer Jamie Dimon has the experience needed to manage the fallout from trading losses, and market disruptions haven't been serious, Bank of America Corp. CEO Brian Moynihan said yesterday.

Trading didn't freeze and markets behaved "reasonably well" given the circumstances after Dimon disclosed at least $2 billion in trading losses at JPMorgan's chief investment office, Moynihan said at a Manhattan investor conference. Dimon has shown he's got the skills to handle the affair, said Moynihan, whose Charlotte, N.C.-based bank ranks second by assets behind JPMorgan. BLOOMBERG

Romney pal plays defense

Staples founder says presidential candidate had no role in unseemly details of workers' termination ◗ Obama camp hitting Mitt over Bain days

▶ Mitt Romney has taken some heat for his past as head of Bain Capital.

EDWARD LINSMIER/GETTY IMAGES

A top surrogate to Mitt Romney said making money — rather than creating jobs — was the primary goal of the presumed Republican Party presidential nominee when he was running Bain Capital, saying he "acted responsibly" as chief executive officer of the private-equity firm.

"The role of private equity as fiduciaries is certainly to make money," said Tom Stemberg, the founder of Staples Inc., in an interview on Bloomberg Television's "Political Capital," airing this weekend. Bain also helped businesses grow, so "these things had redeeming social value, in addition to making Mitt and his investors a lot of money."

Stemberg appeared with a top backer of President Barack Obama, Lawrence Fish, the former chief executive officer of Citizens Financial Group, Inc., who questioned Romney's record at Bain while recognizing that the private-equity industry plays a positive role in the economy.

"Whatever happened there — and I'm sure there were some unfortunate circumstances there, cannot be laid to rest at Mitt Romney's lap."
STEMBERG

"The question about private equity — and this applies to Mitt Romney and his partners — specifically is," when jobs are eliminated, "whether they have behaved fairly and whether they've behaved responsibly. Was fair and complete severance provided to displaced workers? Were their pensions honored?" he said.

This week, the Obama campaign and its allies began airing commercials targeting Romney's business record, portraying him as a corporate raider eager to put profits ahead of employees. A spot released by Priorities USA Action, a super-political action committee backing Obama's campaign, highlighted Bain's investment in GST Steel, which cut jobs and declared bankruptcy in 2001.

Stemberg said the commercial is unfair. BLOOMBERG

Celebs call out Chris Brown performance

Chris Brown appeared to lip-sync his way through his Billboard Music Awards performance on Sunday evening, and it didn't escape the notice of his peers.

"One day if I lipsync I hope I do it as well as him," singer Pink tweeted during Brown's live rendition of "Turn Up the Music."

Mr. Pink, also known as Carey Hart, wasn't impressed either. "I'm pretty sure I saw my wife do that same performance, but she was three months pregnant and actually sang the song," he chimed in, also adding his professional opinion of the subpar BMX biking on stage.

This is getting brutal. Joe Jonas, what tweet you? "What happened to people singing live???"

Here's the thing: The song was obviously lip-synced — and laughably poorly. But the choreography is at least as important as the vocals for these shows, and Brown was far from the only one mouthing his way through a song that he probably had no business singing live.

But as for the fur-trimmed leather coat over a bare chest? No excuses.

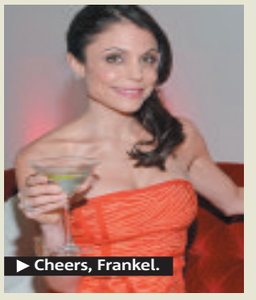
Sleepover at DiCaprio's

If you have $75,000 to spare, Leonardo DiCaprio's Malibu beach house could be yours — for a month, anyway. The breezy oceanfront home is now up for rent at www.zillow.com (and yes, stalkers, there's plenty of photos of all seven bedrooms). We Googled the math, and that's about $2,500 a night for your little "Titanic" fantasy. Invite us, and we'll bring the fogged-up town car.

Frankel shapes up

There are very few things we turn to Bethenny Frankel for advice on, but looking skinny in compromising situations is one of them. When we caught up with the former "Real Housewife" and Skinnygirl liquor founder about her new line of shapewear, she let us in on her inspiration.

"It's shapewear you actually want people to see," she tells us of the line, now available at Macy's. "What happens if you happen to get laid and it shows?"



▶ Cheers, Frankel.

Bethenny babe, thanks for looking out.

— With reporting by Mary Ann Georgantopoulos

She's thinking of the children

During a "Today" show interview yesterday, Kate Gosselin suggested she'll be back on TV — but it's not because she personally wants a new show. "Fans are begging [to see more]," the former "Kate Plus 8" star says. "[The kids] really, honestly miss filming. They've been saying, 'When are we going to go here or there? We miss the crew.'"

Sure Kate, I get it. Just like my dogs keep telling me to have a lunch cocktail and miss deadline.

Talking points

Big night for a Bieber superfan

It turns out pestering Justin Bieber can pay off. Cady Eimer, an 18-year-old Virginia high school student, has been petitioning Bieber for more than a year to be her date to her senior prom — and while he couldn't make the big dance, he did find a way to make it up to her. "I couldn't make it [to prom] so I said, 'I need you to fly to the Billboard Awards and you can be my date,'" he tells People magazine. "She's a big fan, and I thought it would be fun."

We missed you, Tara Reid!

Despite her efforts to present a cleaned-up and mature image while promoting "American Reunion," Tara Reid seems to be up to her old tricks. The troubled actress has been living it up at the Cannes Film Festival, where she was spotted looking worse for the wear while hurrying from one nightclub to another in the wee hours over the weekend, according to the Daily Mail. Reid remains unapologetic about her penchant for celebrating. "It's not like going out and getting drunk is a crime, lots of people do it," Reid tells the U.K.'s Loaded magazine. "It doesn't make me a bad person because I like to go out and have a drink. I've never missed a day's work."

Keep it coming, Mayer

With a new, more mature album to promote, John Mayer is continuing his tour of contrition, looking to explain some of his more outlandish past behavior — like talking out of turn about ex-girlfriends and using racial epithets in magazine interviews. "I had nothing to say. I was going through a time in my life where I didn't really want to share what was going on, but I didn't want to be boring," Mayer explains in an interview with NPR's "All Things Considered." "I remember thinking to myself, 'We've got to give a "Rolling Stone" interview. I don't want anybody at "Playboy" to think this is a boring interview.'"

Reid

Sunday night at the Billboard Music Awards

1: Attention starlets: Mariah Carey owns the rope swing — always will. Nevertheless, Katy Perry debuted her breakup song, "Wide Awake," while suspended in a Cirque du Soleil-esque contraption.

2: Cute overload: Taylor Swift snuggled up to Zooey Deschanel after accepting the Woman of the Year award.

3: Cee Lo Green, as usual, had a good time onstage Sunday night.

4: But it was Jean Sok who stole Cee Lo's set: The breakdancer is missing his left leg, and uses this cane for more than a prop.

5: Forgive us, but we adored Carrie Underwood's Pop Star Barbie dress.

'As I say in the book'

Dave Hill tracks the journey from child to man-child with humor, heart and F-bombs in 'Tasteful Nudes'

Dave Hill may have the unassuming face of a man who could give you solid tax advice, but be forewarned — he is in fact a riotous triumvirate of comedy, heavy metal and velvet suits. The comedian whose biography includes long-running stage shows, spots on "This American Life," rock collaborations with Moby and a budding bromance with Dick Cavett, unleashes his proverbial beast in "Tasteful Nudes … and Other Misguided Attempts at Personal Growth and Validation," a "tell-some" collection of personal essays. Hilarious, poignant and self-effacing, the book covers some of the misadventures and triumphs that helped form Hill into the irresistibly likable goof-ball his fans know today.

You're known as the king of metal, talk shows and podcasts. Are you now the king of books?
That's the plan. I wanted to establish my dominance in another medium. I've had only like three goals in my life. My first goal was to have a rock band, a record deal and a video on MTV. So, boom, I did that. I've been wanting to write a book for 10 or 12 years, but I got so sidetracked with everything else. Then, I thought, "Oh s—! What if they stop making books? I better get on that!"

It's 2012, man. The Mayans are coming for the books first.
Yeah, exactly! Books might cease to exist. And now, my only other goal is to get one of those Newfoundland dogs.

Two out of three ain't bad. You met your goal with putting out the book — what's next?
I'm hoping to become wildly rich. It would be good in general, but specifically, it would be great to just get the dog. I hope that people like the book. And buy it. And read it. I think it has wide appeal. You probably have to be at least 13 to read it because of all the F-bombs.

There are a ton of F-bombs.
That's the most scandalous thing in the book. There's also the prostitute that I don't have sex with. Oh! And, as a follow-up, I recently spoke with her and she got out of the business. She got in touch with me to tell me. She started her own business that doesn't involve having sex for money.

Did you find out anything new about yourself in the process of writing the book?
The book is about prolonged adolescence. I don't think that "becoming a man" is the right way to say it. A lot of it is about my relationship with my mother and trying to do things that I think would earn her respect. By the end of the book, I realized none of the stuff I've been worried about the past 20 years really matters: It's more important to be together, as I say in the book. You know, that's something I get to say all the time now: "As I say in the book."

Q&A

You wrote the book about your more mild-mannered years, not really touching on your now-extensive showbiz presence. I mean, you're buddies with Dick Cavett.
I totally love that guy. In his most recent book, [he] talks about this amazing life and all these crazy people he got to meet. If I were to write a book about my showbiz life at this point, it would probably just be about all the cool times I've hung out with Dick Cavett. It completely blows my mind.

What happens when the game show becomes a party

▶ "There's a thing in 'Hollywood Squares' and 'Hip Hop Squares,' that it's fun and funny, but not at the expense of anybody," says Rosenberg, above. "You definitely have to tease people — you tease the squares and the contestants — but there's an overwhelmingly positive atmosphere."

MTV2 polishes off an old nugget and remixes it
'Hip Hop Squares' host Peter Rosenberg on finding 'the real gold' and on the way he refers to the guests

When considering entertainers like Ghostface Killah, Fat Joe, Amber Rose and Bam Margera, the first word that comes to mind is not usually "square." But when Peter Rosenberg, host of the new MTV2 show, "Hip Hop Squares," talks about the celebrity participants on the show, this is the word he most often uses.

"There are all of these cool people in a situation where they don't have to try to be cool," says Rosenberg, who is best known as a DJ on New York City's Hot 97. "We had the hottest street and radio artist, 2 Chainz, and based on his persona, the idea of seeing him having fun and being casual is just awesome."

Tune in

"Hip Hop Squares" premieres tonight at 11 on MTV2.

"Hip Hop Squares" is based on the classic game show, "Hollywood Squares." As was the case with that show, which reached peak popularity in the 1970s, nine famous personalities sit in the squares of a tic-tac-toe board. In this case though, most are affiliated with the world of hip-hop. While two contestants play tic-tac-toe against each other, they consult the celebs on trivia questions and can decide to take their advice or disregard it.

In one episode, Rosenberg poses the question: "Who is the female recording artist with the most No. 1 hits?" to which Nick Cannon, seated in the center square, excitedly shouts, "That would be my baby mama, Mariah Carey!"

The contestant disagrees.

"Those moments were awesome," laughs Rosenberg. "Every once in a while, we get moments where it's this no-brainer. ... And yet, people would still get it wrong. When those moments happen, that's when I think you get the real gold of the show."

It's hip-hop to be square

One of the slogans for "Hip Hop Squares" is "when the game show becomes a party," and it isn't unusual to see one of the "squares" with a drink in his or her hand.

▶ "Circle gets the square!"

"There was some partying," Rosenberg acknowledges. "There were episodes where it was out of control, but I don't know if I'd blame it on the partying so much as the cast of characters we had. It certainly had a feel that reminded me of the original ['Hollywood Squares']."

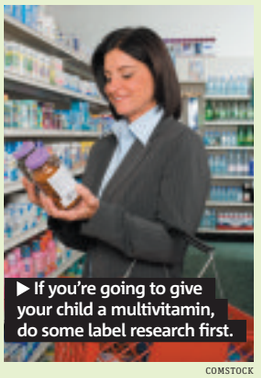
Tips



▶ If you're going to give your child a multivitamin, do some label research first.

COMSTOCK

Vitamin advice

Kids who eat a balanced diet usually don't need a daily multivitamin. But for choosy eaters, a multi can help pick up some of the slack, says pediatrician Alan Greene, M.D., author of "Feeding Baby Green." Use these label-reading tips the next time you're shopping for your child's vitamins.

Fill in the gaps: Check labels for nutrients most likely to be missing from your kid's diet, such as vitamin D, calcium, iron, folate and zinc. Most multis contain little calcium, so if your child doesn't consume much dairy or fortified food, consider a separate calcium supplement.

Do D diligence: Look for at least 400 IUs of vitamin D3 (not D2 or simply D). Vitamin D3, which may also be listed as cholecalciferol or calciol, is thought to be better absorbed than other kinds.

Avoid mercury: If the multi contains omega-3s from fish, look for a statement that the product has been certified free of heavy metals such as mercury and PCBs. RACHEL MORRIS

Judging Bush: Did he tank economy?

RE: "CHECK YOUR WORK: BUDGET MATH OFF": I cannot believe I could agree with Kathy Kourian or Barb Milusky on anything but they are correct in criticizing Mr. Penner on George W. Bush. The Bush presidency was an absolute horror show with the Iraq war lies, 9/11, outrageous government deficit spending, support for the U.N. and worse. Who says Republicans are conservative? Save for a few in Congress, that's another lie swallowed by only the naive. FRANK ST. GEORGE, EAST ROCKAWAY

Former President George W. Bush may have bled the country dry by not properly funding two wars, but it was the budgets of the last two years of his term and the first two years of Obama's — controlled by a Democrat majority — that caused our financial situation. Bush tried to warn Congress. GORDON BROWN, VIA E-MAIL

Here's a free market tactic: Legalize it

Consumers have made marijuana a multibillion-dollar enterprise. Legalize it and add a sales tax. Revenues will cover the costs of any abuse. Citizens have more to fear from murder, arson, rape, muggings, robberies, auto and identity theft or home break-ins — along with ever-increasing levels of confiscatory taxation and debt by government. Free law enforcement to pursue those who commit real crimes against citizens and property. At 18, you are old enough to vote, be a parent, pay taxes, own a car, take out a bank loan, serve in the military and die for your country — not being able to consume marijuana makes no sense. LARRY PENNER, GREAT NECK

Social compact with grandparents denied

May is Older Americans Month and we, the grandparents of America, urge fellow Americans to join with us to protect our earned health care benefits. Sadly, more than 22 million retirees across America have had their earned health care benefits canceled by former employers, and another 14.3 million are on the verge of losing them. Millions of us are in the same sinking health insurance boat. Retirees need to stand up and be counted as many of our former employers have sought ways to rid themselves of health care contracts with us. PAT CHARLESWORTH, VIA E-MAIL

Disturbing to see prideful hatred

RE: "PRESIDENT OBAMA CAN COUNT THEM OUT": David Bowman says that African-Americans "will never support marriage equality for homosexuals because of their perverted lifestyle." I'm glad to see that the NAACP disagrees and hope that other African-Americans will come to support civil rights for all, in recognition of their history and sense of justice. I find it particularly disturbing, not to mention laughably hypocritical, to hear some religious conservative black people say that marriage should be between a man and a woman; given the fact that 70 percent of black children in this country are born to unmarried mothers, they don't seem to be practicing what they preach. JONATHAN WILLNER, BROOKLYN

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Although your associates might have trouble getting a handle on things, this won't be the case with you. Your organizational abilities will make the difference.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Stay out of the way so that you don't rock the boat regarding arrangements that are presently running smoothly. You'll be more fortunate if you let circumstances dictate the show.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Others' hopes may be based on irrational wishes, but not yours. When you dare to dream, it will be founded on a lot of hard work.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Chances are you'll make better progress by working with traditional techniques than you would by using untested methods. Don't throw out the old in favor of iffy innovations.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. As long as you don't get rattled, everything will work out advantageously. Don't allow yourself to get flustered over shifting conditions or things you can't control.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. If you stay on top of several situations that could each bear their own rich harvest, the possibility for an unusually large yield could be much greater than even you expect. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

THE OTHER JERSEY

There's more to the Jersey Shore than fake tans and fist-pumps Although there is plenty of that to go around — thanks, Wildwood!

▶ Ocean City is famous for its family-friendly boardwalk and beaches.

If you're looking to relax, entertain the kids or party on the boardwalk, southern New Jersey has a beach resort for you.

For families: Ocean City
Ocean City takes its self-appointed title of "America's Greatest Family Resort" seriously. Just this year, the squeaky clean, historically dry town shot down a proposal that would have allowed patrons to bring their own wine or beer to restaurants. Does it limit dinner plans? Yes. But it also makes for a family-friendly beach scene, a retro-wholesome boardwalk and blissfully peaceful condo rentals.
Eat this: Manco & Manco Pizza is a boardwalk legend, serving up what pretty much everyone on the island — and nearby Philadelphia, for that matter — will tell you is "real pizza." Order up as many of the thin, ocean air-kissed slices as you can hold, and get ready to fend off the seagulls — they're in on the secret.

For a retreat: Stone Harbor and Avalon
While many shore communities are packed with sunburned tourists, you're likely to sit next to locals at the neighborhood bars of these lower-key locales.
Make reservations here: Headed up by a team of Philly chefs looking for a little summer fun, The Diving Horse (www.thedivinghorseavalon.com) offers something that the Jersey Shore admittedly lacks: a kitchen that's as skilled as it is ambitious.

SHORE

RIKARD LARMA/METRO

For pool parties: Wildwood

With its rowdy boardwalk and hard-partying downtown, Wildwood has long been the Jersey Shore's spring break capital. But even if you're not interested in the Jell-O shot tray, the island also boasts gigantic sprawling beaches that regularly end up on "best of" lists for their free access — not to mention swings and seesaws.

Ride this: Morey's Piers extend out over the sand, packed with amusements and waterslides — and not the second-rate kind you usually find at beach towns. Roller-coaster nerds will get their fill with both the old-school wooden Great White and its loopy younger siblings, while slower-paced beach bums should book a white-linen breakfast on the iconic looming Ferris wheel.

MONICA WEYMOUTH
monica.weymouth@metro.us

Stay here

While the laid-back vibe is the draw of Stone Harbor and Avalon, there's a nightlife scene for when you're done with your book. Right on the border of the two towns, the newly remodeled Windrift Hotel (www.windrifthotel.com) offers a variety of lounges and bars, including a third-floor ocean-front deck with killer views.

▶ The Windrift Hotel adds a pop of nightlife to Avalon.

AC alternative

Atlantic City is the spot for beach-side nightlife, but she's not nearly as hot in the morning. If you're looking to hit up the casinos, consider setting up camp in neighboring Brigantine. The lower-key shore point is a quick cab ride away and offers quiet beaches to work on your tan before going out.

Hopping across the pond to see the Olympics? You'll likely need to get away at least once during your trip Here's where you should go

London is 2012's "it" spot, with its popularity booming as it hosts the Olympics and the Queen's Diamond Jubilee. Here are our picks for the best day trips from London — the ones even Londoners can't resist:

A day at the beach in Brighton

Brighton's funky oceanfront charm is fun even when it's not warm enough to swim (which is indeed most of the time). The city is not even one hour away by train from London. It's filled with quirky shops and hotels like the Hotel Pelirocco, where each room is uniquely decorated, with music-related themes like "Pin Up Parlour" and "Soul Supreme." But the best things to do in Brighton are the most basic: Walking along the beach, taking a look at the Indian-inspired Royal Pavilion (originally built for King George IV) or eating fish and chips by the sea.

A step back in time in Canterbury

It's only an hour and a half or so by train from London, but it's easy to feel like you've gone back in time in Canterbury. Many centuries-old buildings are still intact (including some from the 14th century, circa Chaucer's famous "Canterbury Tales"). The spires of the famous, majestic cathedral always loom large in the background, but don't miss stopping by Madame Oiseau, a French-run sweet shop that's essentially a real-life version of the chocolatier featured in the movie "Chocolat."

▶ Check out the fun times on the beach in Brighton. Think of the Jersey Shore, but with British accents instead of Jersey accents. Somehow a bit more appealing, right?

A quaint escape in Oxford

Oxford's best known for its world-famous university, which offers tours at many of the colleges, but there's plenty more to do in this quaint city. You can take in the art at the world-class Ashmolean Museum or just browse along the cobblestone streets. For an upscale bite, the brasserie at the Malmaison hotel is popular, tucked in the basement of a former 19th-century prison.

Devils, Rangers spar on ice in physical Game 4 New Jersey takes win to even up series, 2-2 War of words between coaches extends to game

The Rangers talked a strong game Sunday afternoon, but they played another poor one last night.

The Rangers were thoroughly outplayed for the fourth straight game in dropping Game 4 of the Eastern Conference finals to the Devils, 4-1. The series is tied 2-2. Game 5 is tomorrow night at MSG.

Bryce Salvador, Travis Zajac and Zach Parise scored for the Devils. Parise scored twice, including a late empty-netter. Martin Brodeur made 27 saves in the win.

The 40-year-old didn't have to work especially hard as the Rangers generated only 28 total shots. The Rangers did not record their first shot until Carl Hagelin's 38-footer 10:21 into the match.

By then, the Devils had a 1-0 lead on Salvador's seeing-eye wrister that rolled under Henrik Lundqvist's (26 saves) pads.

Zajac's game-winning goal 3:49 after Salvador's score ended any pretense of drama. Michael Del Zotto, who struggled all night before being benched for much of the final two periods, gave the puck away to Parise which created a 2-on-1. Parise feathered a cross-ice pass to Zajac, who one-timed a shot from the left face-off circle that Lundqvist had no shot at stopping.

Parise's power-play goal 2:41 into the third increased the lead to 3-0.

The teams' on-ice animosity finally matched their coaches' off-ice war of words. Ryan McDonagh fought Adam Henrique 9:26 into the game, and Ryan Callahan and Ilya Kovalchuk were given matching roughing majors. Both led up to a shouting match between opposing coaches from their respective benches at 6:18 of the third following Mike Rupp's left to the jaw of Brodeur.

Ryan McDonagh, right, and Adam Henrique tangled in the nastiest game of the series yet.

New Jersey's Martin Brodeur extended his postseason goaltender wins record to 109 with last night's win. He also holds the record for shutouts.

Yankees struggle at plate again

As the Yankees slogged their way through another struggle at the plate, one fan in the sparse Yankee Stadium crowd yelled "Can anyone get a hit?"

Track records indicate the Yankees can get a hit, even a clutch one, but not last night as a 6-0 loss to the Royals dropped them to .500 on the season.

The Yankees went 0-for-12 with runners in scoring position and 2-for-14 with men on base, failing to generate much of anything against Royals starter Felipe Paulino for the second time this month.

Hiroki Kuroda allowed three runs and seven hits over 5 1/3 innings, including a two-run homer to Mike Moustakas in the first.
